Key Takeaways

Cable trays in Australia typically range from AUD 20 to AUD 500 or more, depending on material, size, and type.

Price Overview

Lightweight Aluminium Trays: Generally cost between AUD 20 to AUD 100 per meter. Aluminium is corrosion-resistant and suitable for most indoor and outdoor installations. Galvanised Steel Trays: More cost-effective, priced around AUD 25 to AUD 80 per meter, offering good strength but heavier than aluminium.

Stainless Steel Trays: Premium option for high corrosion resistance and chemical environments, typically AUD 80 to AUD 500 per meter, depending on thickness and width. Wire Mesh (Basket) Trays: Lightweight and flexible, often AUD 30 to AUD 150 per meter, ideal for aesthetic concealment and easy cable routing. Cable Ladder Trays: Designed for heavy loads and industrial use, prices range from AUD 50 to AUD 400 per meter, depending on span, material, and load capacity.

Factors Affecting Price

Material: Stainless steel is the most expensive, followed by aluminium, then galvanised steel. Tray Type: Ladder trays are generally more expensive than solid-bottom or perforated trays due to structural requirements. Size and Width: Wider trays (e.g., 300mm or more) cost more than narrow trays (75–150mm).

Accessories: Fittings, brackets, and supports add to the total cost. Some suppliers offer kits including these components. Length: Standard lengths are 500mm, 1000mm, and 2000mm; longer sections or custom sizes may increase the price.
