Types of Galvanized Cable TraysHot-Dip Galvanized Cable Trays – Fabricated from mild steel and coated after manufacturing, providing superior corrosion resistance, ideal for outdoor and industrial environments (Emerald Steel Industries LLC, Ruwais Steel).

Pre-

Galvanized (GI) Cable Trays – Galvanized before fabrication, offering cost-effective protection against moisture and environmental elements, suitable for indoor or less corrosive settings (Gooxoom, Trans Light Electricals).

Powder-

Coated or Stainless Steel Options – While not strictly galvanized, these alternatives provide additional durability and aesthetic finishes for specialized applications (Emerald Steel Industries LLC, Bonn Group).

Factors Affecting Price

Material Thickness and Load Capacity – Heavier gauge steel and higher load-bearing trays cost more. Tray Width and Length – Larger trays or custom sizes increase pricing. Environmental Protection – Hot-dip galvanization is more expensive than pre-galvanized due to enhanced corrosion resistance.
